The Game of Survival
The story behind this game is you are the overseer at a research facility and you are trying to create a bacteria that can survive for the most amount of time in a hostile environment.

The goal of the game is to produce the most amount of bacteria in a given number of turns.

Click on New and then select the starting population/or make a random one.

Use the arrow keys to advance the population.

You will get one point per new bacteria produced.

The game is over when the turn limit is up.